Deformation of the New Testament Church and history
The Panopticon is a type of institutional building and a system of control designed by the English philosopher and social theorist Jeremy Bentham in the late 18th century. The scheme of the design is to allow all (pan-) inmates of an institution to be observed (-opticon) by a single watchman without the inmates being able to tell whether or not they are being watched.

The SF version of the walled city is the domed city and the first of those (influential on the many later enclosed future-cities from We to Logan's Run, Mega City One etc) is H G Wells's The Sleeper Wakes (1899). In that novel as in many of its textual descendants there's a wall (with a door in it) in two senses: an actual wall separating the city from the world (Wells's future Britain ...
